STROLLING ALONG CEN-TRAILS

Our Stroll Along Cen-trails includes many smaller trails of club work, sports events, and socializing which branch off in every direction. Cen-trails led past frenzied basketball games, freezing football games, thrilling golf matches, and recordbreaking track meets. The socializing trail was used often as prom preparations, soc hops, sectional decoration competition, band practice, and committee meetings got under way. Talking in the halls at noon, exchanging gossip between classes, stuffing books back into overcroweded lockers, and fighting your way through the traffic jams in the hallways are all events that take place as we "Stroll Along Cen-trails."

Centrail's King Denny Bieberich and Queen Linda Henschen.

On December 22, from the moment the first couple entered the gym, suspense and anticipation mounted in the hearts and minds of everyone. Scenery for the crowning consisted of a gate, where the couples met and a red-brocaded backdrop accented with silver crowns.

The moment everyone was waiting for came when Denny Bieberich became Centrail's King, and Linda Henschen was crowned Queen.

The voting for the King and Queen is done by the student body. The annual staff sponsors this yearly event.

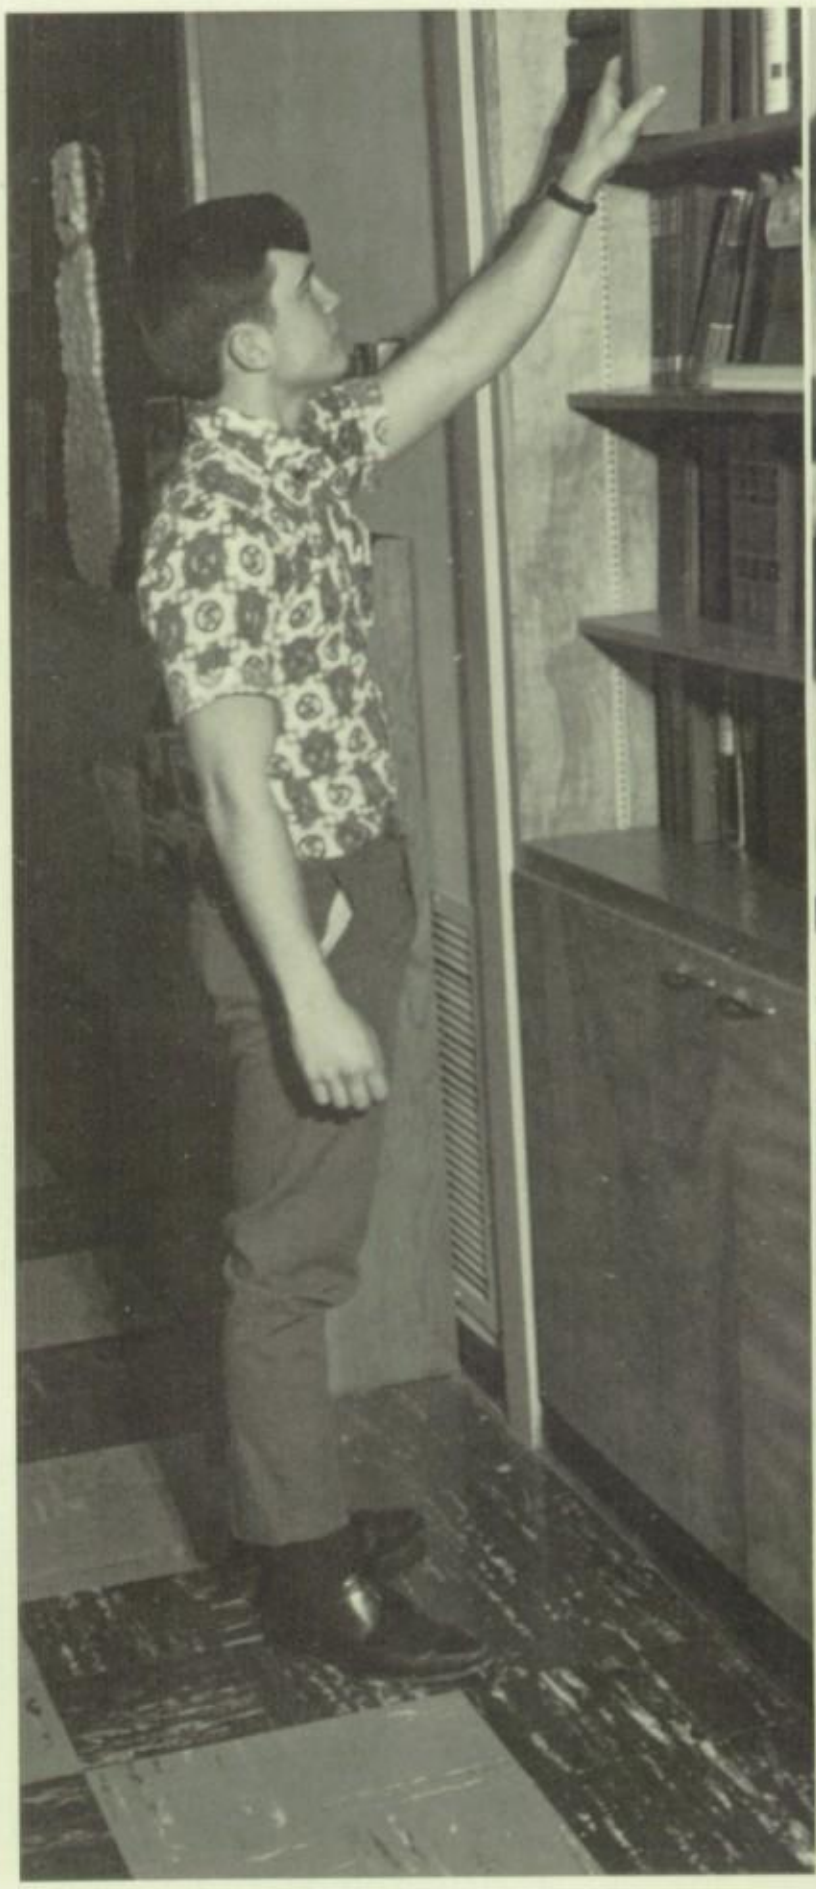
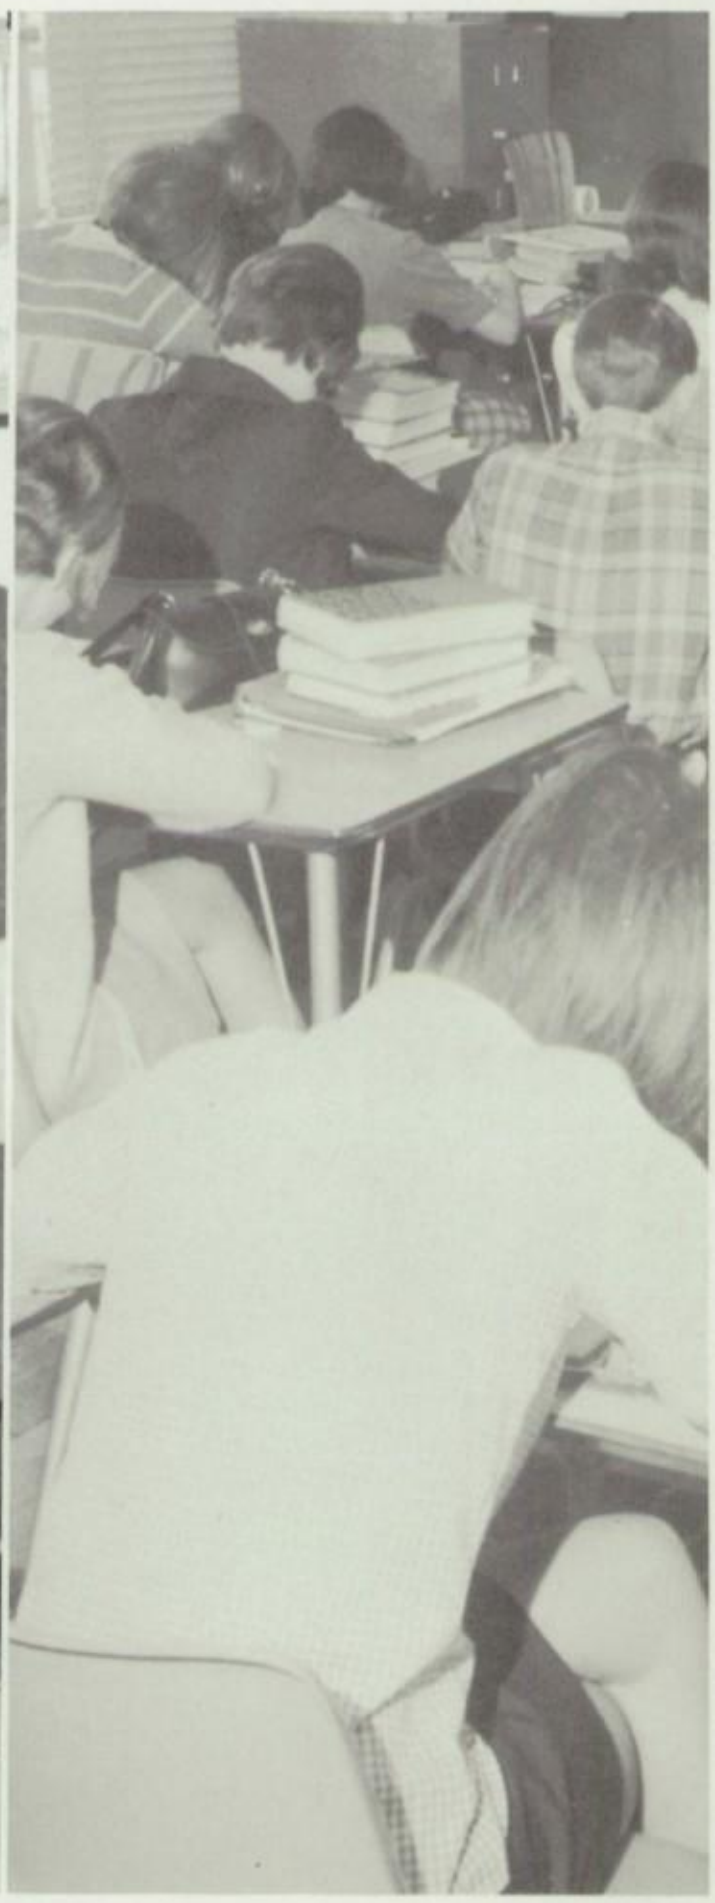
THE ACADEMICS TRAIL



Studies are an important part of the days activities in any school. Many subjects were offered at Adams Central this year and students chose those that interested them. The usual routine was changed completely with the switch to the float system. Unlike other years, classes met only four days a week for 70 minutes a day. Although "psychology and Latin were dropped from the curriculum, industrial arts was added and Spanish III was offered. The high school ate lunch during two separate lunch periods. There was no homeroom in which to work on lab reports or compare bookkeeping. Instead, fourth periods on Thursday were replaced by an activity period. Although the daily routine was changed, students still had to study for weekly tests and semester exams.

DIANA UNITED TEACHING PROF



Lectures, General Elections and Problems

This year at AC, Mr. Mossburg and Mr. Hilbert brought students closer to U.S. History, World History and current happenings. Slides and movies of historic happenings were discussed after being shown. Questions were asked and answered, and tests were suffered through. The different wars were compared and linked together--how they began, how they were fought, how they ended, and the similarities and differences. Discussions were often held on the draft since most boys were interested in this topic.

Mr. Hilbert tries intently to find the lost "colony".

U.S. History students focus their minds on the day's lesson with varying degrees of intentness.

of Democracy Interest Students

With the help of Mr. Shoup and Mr. Mossburg, the Seniors now have a better idea of how the United States government operates. The government classes studied the Bill of Rights, the Constitution, powers of Congress, the court system, and how State government is organized. The pros and cons of county, township, local, city, and village governments were discussed and solutions to the problems of these governments were suggested. The government students suffered through tests, and tried to decipher blackboards. Current Events concerning the day's lesson were fully discussed and "solved," speeches on the day's lesson were given to the class, and income tax forms were explained. The Seniors discovered how farms are identified by townships, ranges, sections, and quarter sections. All in all, the government students learned of the organization, operation, problems, and finance of the governments of the United States.

Speeches were common occurrences in Mr. Shoup's government classes.

Now, Donna, are you sure ranges run north and south?

dents Explore Foreign Customs and Cultures

Buenos dias, Bonjour, and Hi! were heard in the halls of A.C. this year. To some, it may have been baffling, but the A.C. students seemed to know what they were saying. In the halls between classes, you could hear French and Spanish students frantically trying to memorize their vocabulary words for the day, or literature students reciting their Shakespeare. Mrs. Kirchoffer and Mrs. Stucky helped us in our native language, unrelentlessly drilling us on the parts of speech, word usage, and sentence structure. Our background in English formed the basis for understanding the structure of a foreign language. Miss Williamson spoke to us in Spanish and expected to hear answers in Spanish. Slides on Spanish explorers were shown and students listened to tapes of conversations. Mrs. Kellog presented interesting facts on French life and cultures as well as teaching us to conjugate verbs and understand sentences. With these teachers to help us, we are well on our way to a mastery of several languages.

Science and Math Classes Help Prepare Scientists

Simple mathematics play an important role in everyday life. All calculations from bushels per acre to density per cubic centimeter must be made accurately. Students enrolled in general math., Algebra I, and Algebra II classes, plane and solid Geometry and trigonometry. These classes formed basis for future training or practical application. Factor combinations, volume, functions of logarithms and graphs were all presented to the students. Proving equations and proofs, graphing equations and searching for unknowns provided homework for six mathematics classes.

Bill Stoller and Darrell Gerig help each other dissect a crawfish.

Did you know that sound travels at the rate of 1087 ft. per sec.? This and other facts were used by AC's physics students. Heat, sound, illumination and energy were four main topics the class delved into. Is it possible that there is a fourth dimension? What are the principles behind a rocket lift off? Why does a train whistle sound shriller as it approaches you? Inquisitive young minds voiced thought-provoking questions such as these in all of AC's science classes. Chemistry students memorized valances, and symbols, and tested their memories by identifying "unknown" elements. Biology students found themselves chasing praying mantisses, lady bugs, and falling leaves. Class time was spent discussing biological organisms, genes, and dissecting specimens.

Cadet Teaching and Vocational Agriculture

Becoming the teacher gave A.C.'s exploratory teachers a chance to see classroom problems from the teachers point of view. Working with young children tried the patience of seven seniors but their efforts were often rewarded with smiles and "You look nice Today." In many cases their experiences served as a basic for career choices.

Ag Boys learned new and better techniques in the field of farming. Films judging teams, and field trips added a variety of ways to help the boys understand agriculture. In their studies they worked on farm management, keeping accurate records, and studying parliamentary procedure.

Mr. Gerig prepares Debra Miller for the musical world.

Musical and Artistic Abilities Are Encouraged

Mr. Kirchhofer helps Lynnette Wilder develop her artistic abilities.

This year Miss Mazelin joined A.C. as the elementary art teacher. With her help, the children in grades 1-6 made puppets, snowmen mobiles, moccasins, rocking chair people, and snow scenes. In high school, Mr. Kirchhofer helped his art students with their still life drawings, and their crafts. Some of their accomplishments included sculptures, paintings, drawing in perspective and lettering. The music department was headed by Mr. Henkel and Mr. Gerig. At the first meeting it was decided to have a girls glee club and a choir. The glee club presented a variety of musical selections at the annual Winter Concert. Mr. Gerig prepared the choir for the Pops Concert with popular songs.

Home Economics Prepares Future Homemakers

Do your souffles fall? Your upside down cakes turn right side up? Why don't you join A.C.'s home Economic class? All the classes spent the first semester studying the hows and why's of home-making. The last semester was spent applying knowledge learned during the first semester. Freshman students studied foods and proper nutrition, while sophomores learned about the care and feeding of babies. Juniors tried to balance budgets, and manage a home. Seniors studied marriage and covered topics from dating to divorce. Students were allowed to choose the garment they wished to sew. The smell of cookies, fancy cakes, yeast and dinner rolls, and complete dinners, floated through the halls of Central.

Freshmen students rise and shine in the morning, after eating the breakfast which they prepared themselves.

Sandy Oliver points out the basic points for keeping a clear complexion to Donna Heyerly and Paula Zimmerman.

and the World of Business

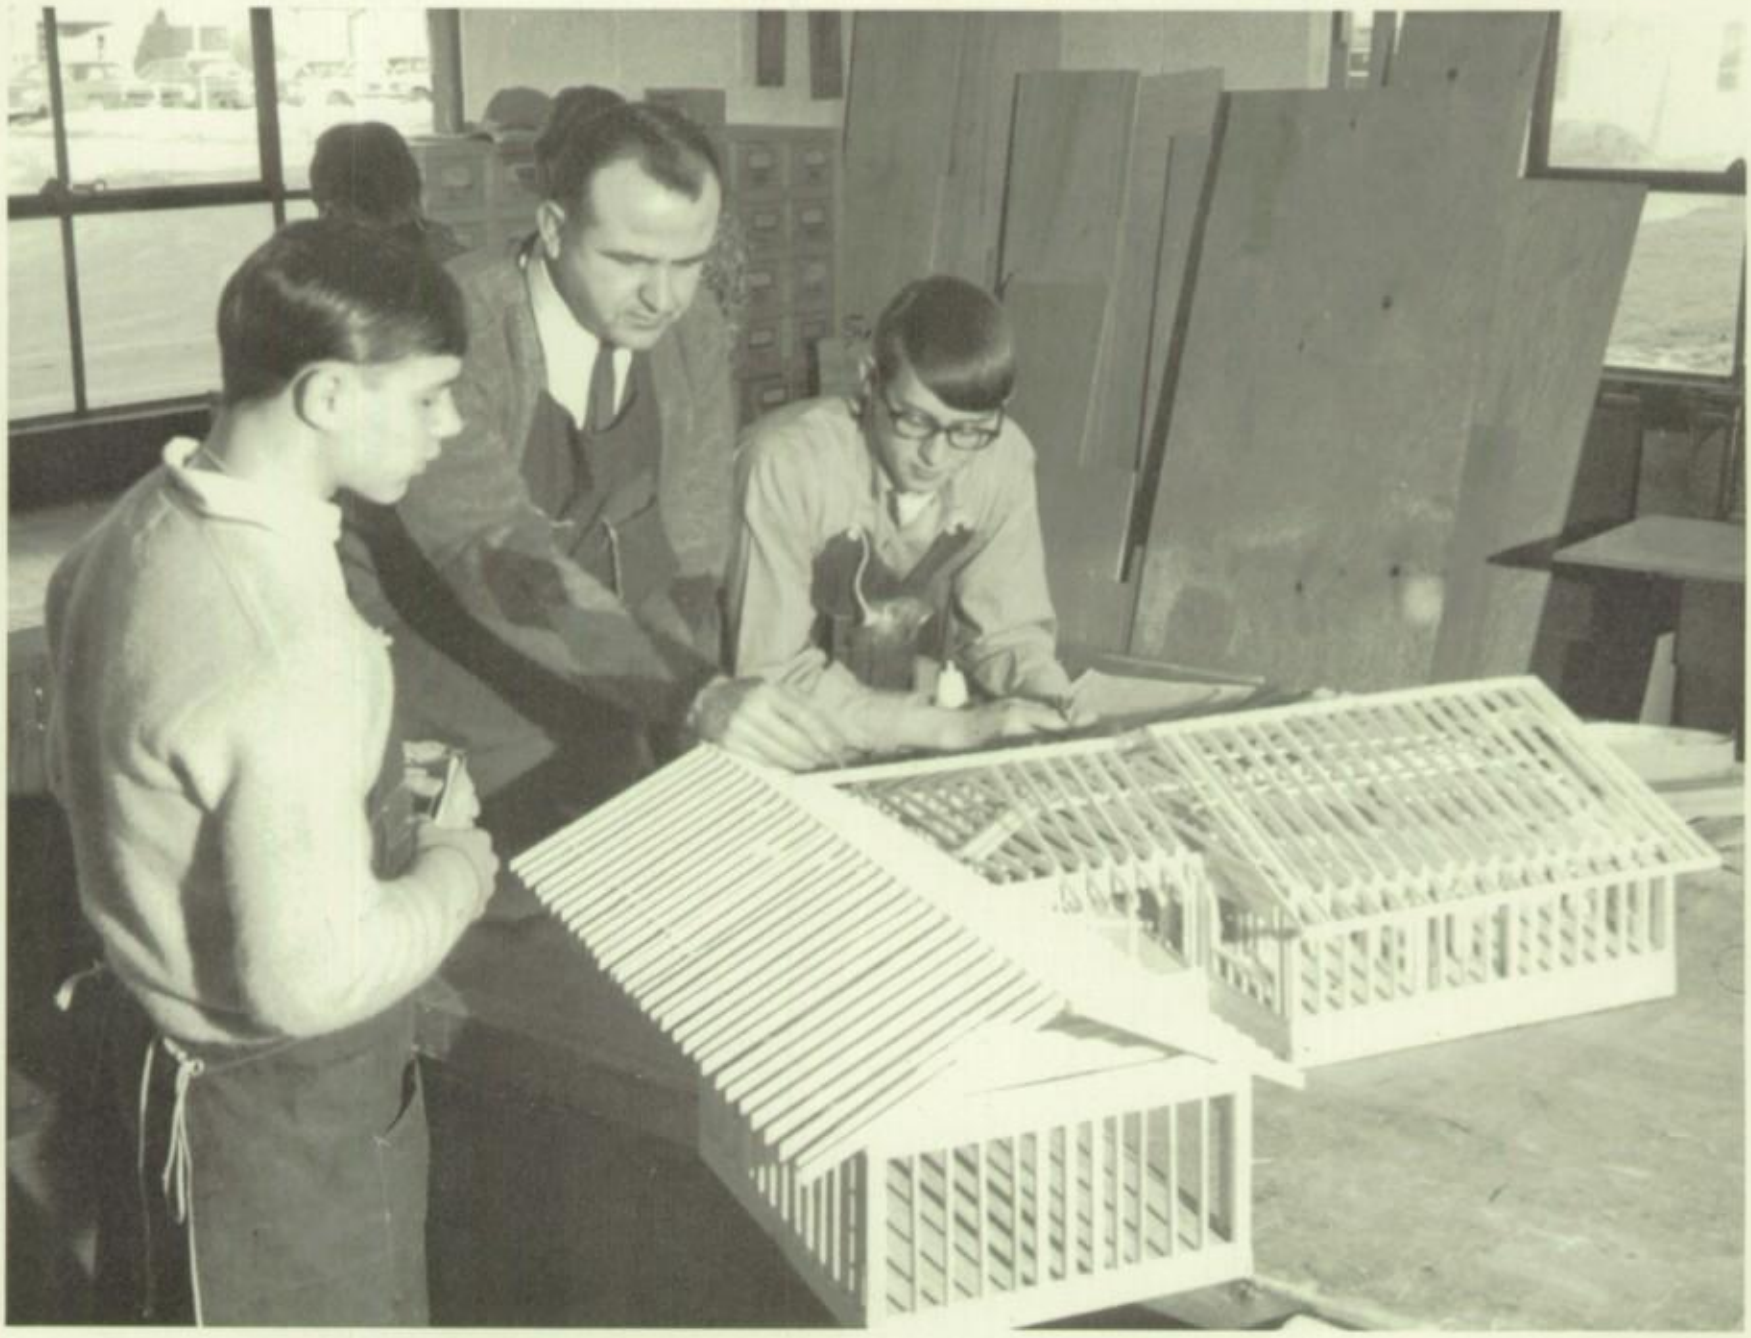
There are many courses offered to the students in preparing for the business world. Mrs. Dillion helps prepare the A.C. girls to become better secretaries by teaching Secretarial Training. They are taught how to dress, how to conduct themselves in an office, how to help their boss, and how to operate many of the machines found in an office. She, along with Mr. Bryan, also teaches typing to the young business men and women of tomorrow. Almost everyone will have to take care of books some time in life and Mr. Bryan helps to make this task easier. In Bookkeeping you are taught about the journals, different ledgers, balance sheets, etc. Mr. Habegger and Mr. Bryan teach a semester of Business Sales. You are taught the primary selling techniques and what makes a business a success.

A.C.'s girls prepare for the business world.

Rita Kaehr prepares herself for the task of being a proficient secretary.

Denny Striker and Larry Ellenberger practice using their selling techniques.

Industrial Arts Teaches Mechanical Skills



Mr. Hakes shows Paul Shoaf and Virgil Bowers how to design the plans for a home of the future.

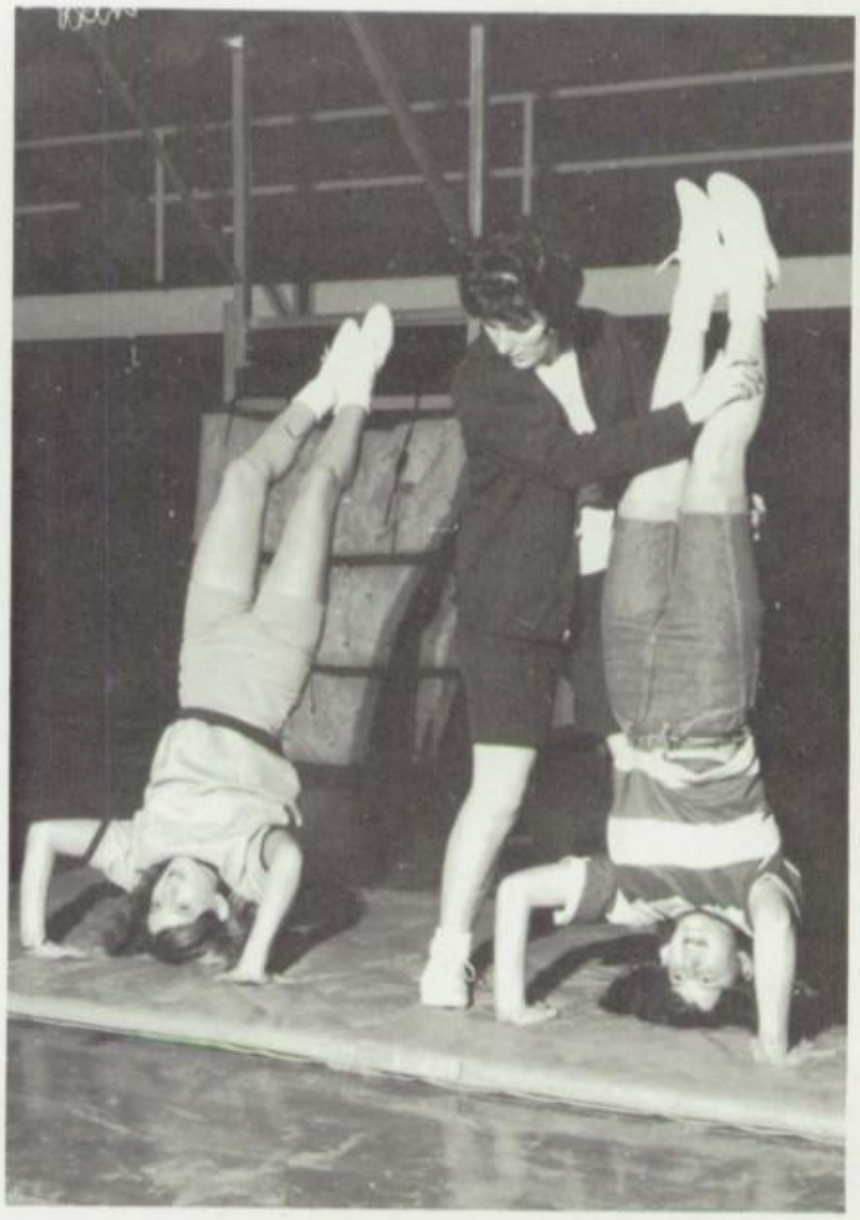
Industrial arts prepares our architectural designers, engineers, draftsmen, and handy men of the future. In "shop" the boys are taught the proper way to use hand and power tools, safely. These tools include the three basic power saws, the joiner, the circular, and the band saws. They also learn to use wood and metal lathes and various types of welding equipment.

The boys prepare themselves in learning how to handle the different types of saws.

Physical Education Driver's Training

Freshman and sophomore girls kept in good physical condition this year by participating in P.E. classes. Girls first warmed up doing calisthenics with the famous "Chicken Fat" record. After warming up they were eager to display their talents in basketball, volleyball, softball, and tumbling. Freshman and sophomore boys weren't left out. They keep their muscles swelling by participating in a variety of sports also.

Drivers training was a course offered during the summer at Adams Central. An increase in enrollment caused the addition of one more driver education car and teacher. Would you know what to do if a tire suddenly blew out? This and other problems were presented to drivers training students for their inspection and solution. Practical application of ideas was received as students accumulated their driving hours.



Mrs. Stine teaches her P.E. classes the arts of acrobats.

Mr. Habegger shows his students in drivers training class the best way to plan a trip and to get the best gasoline mileage.

THE ORGANIZATIONS TRAIL

Participating in clubs and organizations kept after school hours occupied for many Centralites Basketball games, the Sunshine Banquet, marching in parades, singing at concerts, and sponsoring soc hops added spice to the daily routine. Working together on committees, shouldering responsibilities, and completing plans helped students mature as the school year progressed.

Scholarship, citizenship, service, and leadership are the ideals that Adams Centrals' National Honor Society promotes throughout the school. It brings new ideas into the organization the officers, along with sponsor, Miss Beavers, attended a day long workshop in Marion. The society celebrated the yuletide season by holding their Christmas party at the home of Charlotte Elam. With the array of food served, the members filled themselves and then attended the play "Here's Love." In honor of all students, who made the honor roll four out of five times, the society hosted a spring party.

Student Council Voices Student Body Opinion

AC's Student Council's main function was to act as a buffer between the administration and the student body. Each activity period of the high school was represented by one student and the seventh and eighth grades each had one representative.

"Do you have any complaints?" It seemed as there were always many answers to this question. The Council often discussed several alternatives and suggested a solution to the administration. Surprise locker inspections, and a dance enabled the Council to undertake a special project.

"We're going to meet our deadline!" Phrases heard more often were, "that copy written yet?" and "I hope those pictures come today!" With one more deadline met there was little time left before the next one loomed ahead. Drawing layouts, typing, planning pictures and scheduling work sessions kept dedicated staff members busy. Recording changes in our school and special events that took place is just part of CEN-TRAILS job. Will you remember what English-Lit. was like and who your classmates were? This, then, is what the CEN-TRAILS staff has struggled for--to give you a memory book to be proud of.

The Adams Central F.F.A. had a very active year. The chapter had such judging teams as soil, dairy, livestock, crop, poultry, and parliamentary. June Raudenbush was chosen the F.F.A. Sweetheart and won second in the District Contest. For the first time some members of the chapter motored to Kansas City to attend the National F.F A. Convention. At this Convention Ron Habeggar received an American Farmer Degree. Other activities sponsored by the Future Farmers included the sale of vehicle safety emblems, supporting the WOWO Penny Pitch, and teaming with the P.T.A. in its Annual Slave Auction. This year the chapter also competed with other local chapters in basketball.

Rifle Club is an organization made to develop its members' skills in handling and caring of guns. Beginning members are taught the basic principles in using guns. Before a beginner may even start the actual practice with a gun, he must go through a series of training sessions. The advanced members take part in matches with other schools. Matches are scored on the basis of scoring on ten different targets. A bullseye counts as ten points. The prone sitting positions are scored separately.

This year as Spanish Club members walked the halls, they greeted each other with "Buenos Dias" or another Spanish greeting. The idea of speaking Spanish in the halls turned into a contest to find the best conversationalist. To boost the Club treasury, the Club sold Hurricane lamps and sponsored a bake sale. Breaking pinatas and tasting Spanish tacos created a Spanish atmosphere at the Christmas Party. To add a finishing touch, the Club honored their senior members at the Spring party.

Many A.C. students became new French Club members this year. At the first meeting a copy of the Club Constitution was given to each member and the 1967-68 officers were elected. Monthly meetings were held in the cafeteria, films shown, and refreshments were served. Students who had previously visited France gave talks, showed slides, and displayed French money and newspapers. To earn money for the French Club party the Club sponsored a dance featuring a school band. At the December meeting, Christmas songs were sung in French and new French songs were learned. French students practiced their conversational French while coming to and going from the Club meetings, the students assembled in the gym for games.

Pep Club Inspires Schools Enthusiasm

ADAMS CENTRAL PEP CLUB

B. Zimmerman quietly reflects on the scores other pep club members voice their enthusiasm for the game.

The A.C. Pep Club took on a different appearance this year with red vests and white blouses. A new constitution was written and row captains were busy seeing that it was enforced. Visiting schools were welcomed by the pep club's famous banner saying, "JETS SAY HI TO ALL". No matter how far away the game was members followed the team faithfully. Cheerleaders kept up school spirit by decorating the halls with clever signs and posters. Skits put on by students boosted spirits before games. One thing not to be quickly forgotten was sitting in the cold and sometimes even rain to back the football team. We are sure this added greatly to the over all spirit of the team.

G.A.A. was a favorite activity among the sports minded females of A.C. Under the direction of Mrs. Steine the girls participated in many activities such as basketball, softball, track, and bowling. Every other week the girls would gather in the gym and learn new skills and techniques in accordance to the sport in which they were then participating. On the weeks when balls weren't flying or legs aching from jumping hurdles, the G.A.A. bowling team assembled at Villa Lanes to try to bowl that perfect game of "300." Although no one achieved this task, many fun-filled hours were spent trying to raise averages and become the top team in the league. Awards were presented at the end of the year to deserving girls who had faithfully and actively participated in the sports offered by G.A.A.

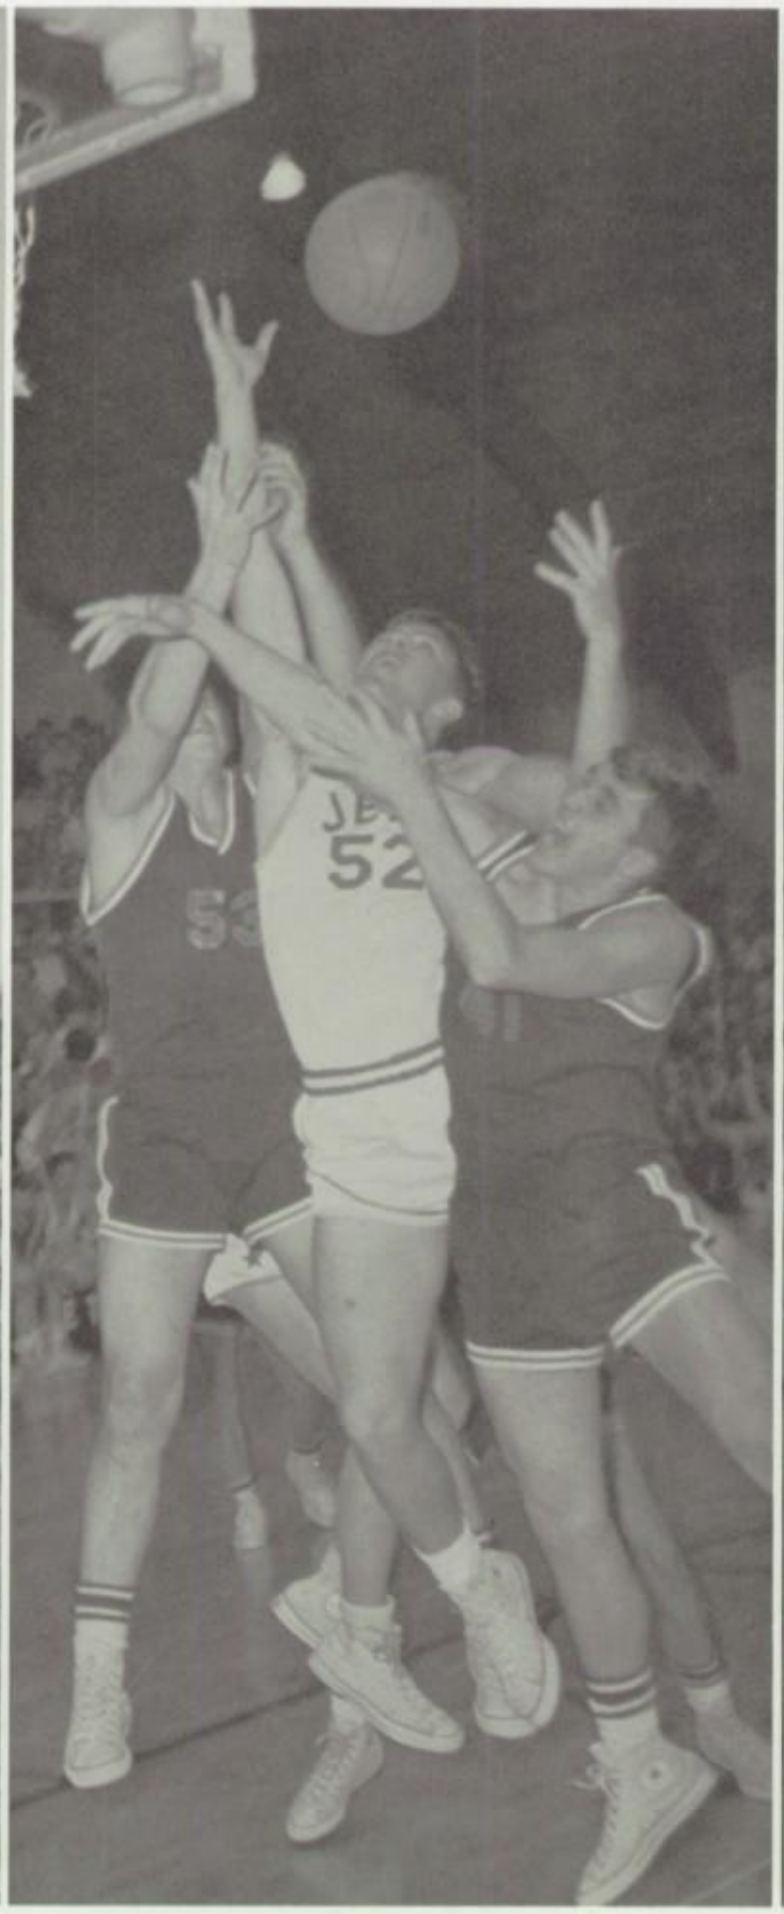
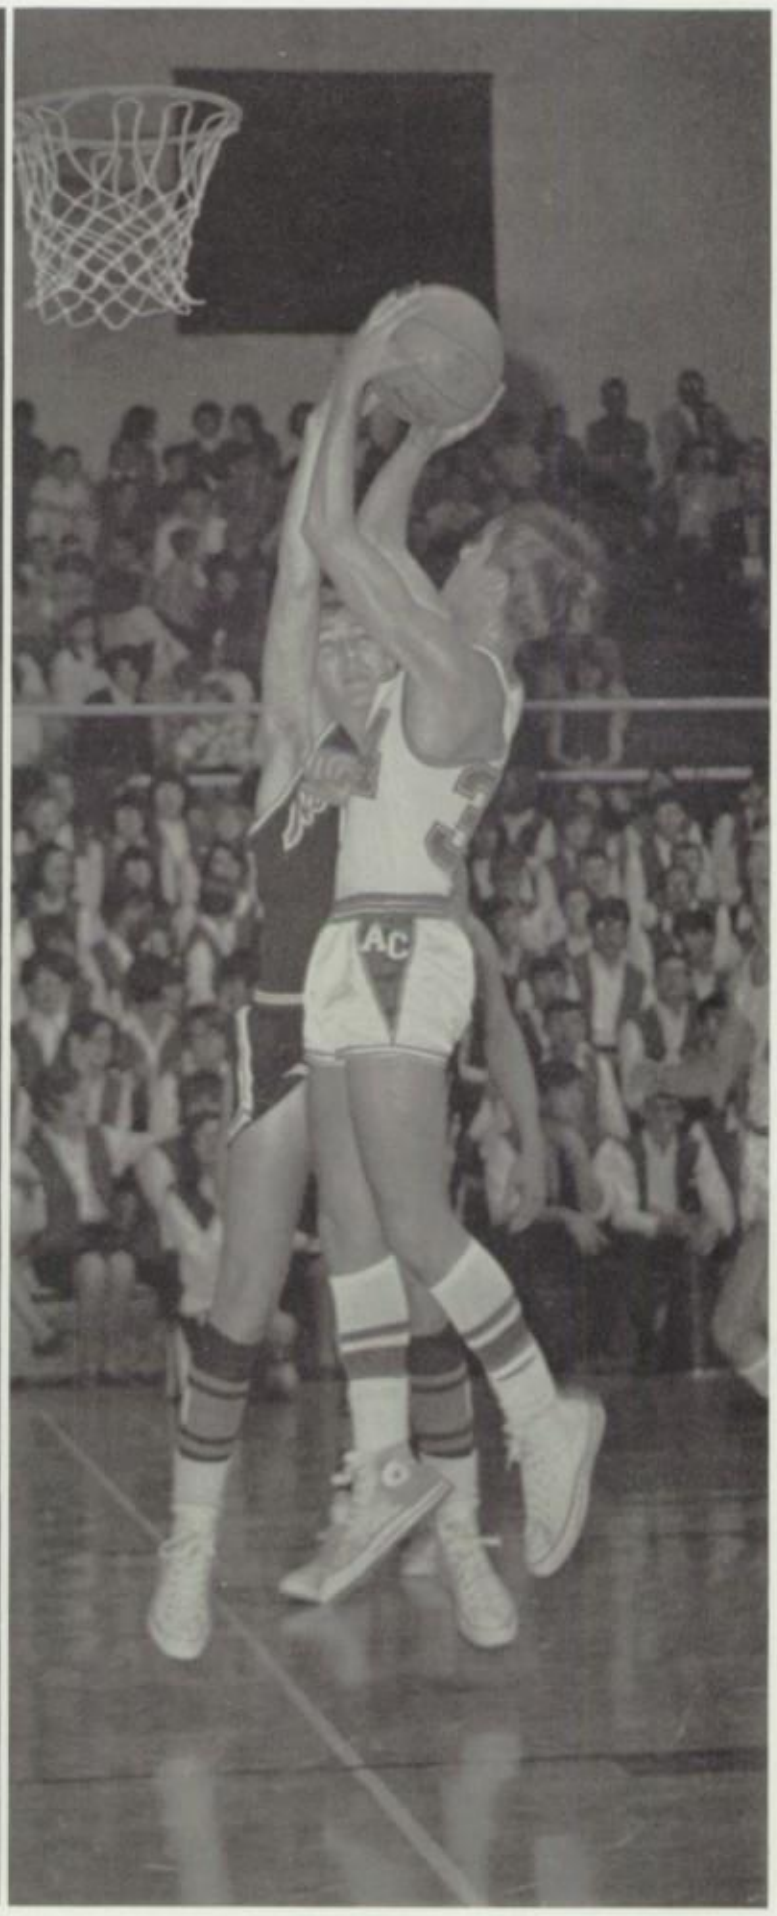
THE SPORTS TRAIL

Shivering at track meets, breathlessly watching the basketball roll around the hoop, or surging onto the football field following a last-second touchdown boosted the spirits of loyal Jet fans. Sports provide an energy outlet for many Centralites. Countless after school practices prepared the Jets to execute successful plays and display skills. Teamwork, Balance, Hustle, Pride, Sportsmanship, and Scholarship were some of the ideals that Central athletes strived toward.





The Pep Club members voices were hoarse and their spirits high following exciting games.

Even though many fans felt this would be A.C.'s rebuilding year, the young inexperienced Jets proved them wrong. With desire, teamwork, and hustle making up for the lack of size and experience, the Jets racked up a string of 5 consecutive victories before losing to Wes-Del. The remainder of the season found the Jets in a scoring slump, but they came through in fine style for the sectional.

The Jets aim their sights on another basket.

7th, 8th Grade Teams Prepare for Future

From November to late March the supreme sport at A.C. and all other high schools in Indiana is basketball. The reserve, Jr. High, and Frosh teams showed the fans their desire for victory through their hustle and teamwork and sportsmanship. The teams, though young and inexperienced, finished the season well.

Steve Lyons and Jug Fisher wait impatiently for the ball to come down.

Steve Zurcher uses ballet to help the JETS capture another victory.

Is it a bird? Is it a plane? No, it's an A.C. flying JET!

Rick uses his JET POWER to out rebound two Norwell Knights.

Sock it to 'em Mitch.

THE PERSONALITIES TRAIL

Friendships are an important part of school days. Plotting mischievous pranks or working on worthwhile projects strengthen bonds of friendship. Working late on the annual, sectional paper, or Prom decorations, brought underclassmen closer together and held special meaning for seniors. Many memories, happy and sad, will be drawn from happenings at Adams Central.

School Board Finalizes Construction Plans

MR. A. F. ALLEN, Superintendent

A. C.'s administration had many new tasks this year with the change to the float period system. New lunch schedules had to be organized, class schedules set up, and activity period meetings scheduled. A.C.'s teachers and students learned together where they should be when. Cries of "Where should I be now?" were quickly answered in the high school office. The Superintendent kept the public informed of the building program and school policies thru the Jet Journal. Construction on the new addition began and again the administration was faced with new problems. Where would the buses park? How would the students get to the buses? Where will the teachers park? Where will the fans park for the ballgames? Our administration met the challenge and once again came up with the solutions to our many problems.

Young Adam Centralites keep busy during school hours working on math papers, learning to read, practicing printing, and taking "trips" to Mars via tape recordings and earphones.

THE ADVERTISING TRAIL

Yearbooks take a lot of time, work, and money. The last is supplied in part by our advertisers. Our advertisers range from beauty shops to factories, grocery stores to gas stations. They are all equally important and it would be impossible to publish this book without their support. The Cen-trails staff would like to thank the advertisers for their part in making this book possible.

To Everyone,

The editor wishes to thank all the people who have helped make this book possible. The patience of our advisor, teachers, and parents, the co-operation of our photographers, and the sometimes--unwilling help of the staff is deeply appreciated. A big THANK-YOU goes to the kids who typed till their fingers ached, who wrote copy and copy and more copy, and who stayed up all night to meet the deadlines. I hope we have presented you with a book you can be proud of.

Sincerely,
Connie High
